Therapy Physics Mock Exam Announcement

We're happy to announce our second annual therapy mock exam provided by the Mid-Atlantic Chapter of the AAPM. The purpose of the exam is to provide the student with a simulation of the environment of the ABR oral exam. The examiners are board certified medical physicists from the MAC-AAPM chapter, both from academic medical centers and community hospitals or cancer centers, with a wide range of expertise and experience. After taking the mock board exam, the student would be familiar with his or her individual areas of weakness to improve with additional study before the actual board exam. In addition, the mock board exam would allow for practicing the expression of coherent answers in a risk-free setting. Examiners would provide some guidance and feedback to the student on his or her performance.
