Dear Members/Colleagues,

We are pleased to announce that the Mid-Atlantic Chapter of AAPM (MAC-AAPM) will hold its 1.5-day annual meeting at Gaylord national resort and convention center at National Harbor in October 13-14, 2017. Our meeting program and further detailed information can be found at our website:

<http://macaapm.org/fall2017/>

We've put together an outstanding 1.5-day agenda filled with interesting topics given by leaders in our field including a presentation by the AAPM President. This year's meeting theme is the application of precision medicine in medical physics. Our goal is to bring experts in the field of precision medicine from various academic and national laboratory institutions to learn about the latest advancements and experience.

We will also accept member abstract submissions for proffered presentation sessions during this 1.5-day meeting and invite all Medical Physicists to submit abstracts in one of the following two categories:

1) Young Investigators Symposium (YIS):

All junior members (student, graduate student, postdocs and residents) are qualified to submit under this category. Accepted submissions will be given opportunity for a short oral presentation. All presenters will also be considered for 1st, 2nd and 3rd place monetary prizes at the meeting.

2) Proffered Sessions:

All full-time members are qualified for this category. Accepted submissions will be given opportunity for a 15-20 minute oral presentation. We are encouraging submissions that also include clinical advancements at your institution that highlight implementation and not necessarily new research.

All abstracts are subject to 300 word maximum limit and should be submitted in Plain Text, Word or PDF format to macaapm@gmail.com before September 11, 2017 in order to be considered for these presentations. Previous presentations in 2017 national meetings (e.g. AAPM, ASTRO) will also be considered when disclosed during submission. Submitters are also required to be registered as an attendee separately available through our website at:

<http://macaapm.org/fall2017/>

We invite all AAPM members both inside and outside our chapter areas to attend our annual meeting in October.
